Bringing Recovery Supports to Scale

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE CENTER STRATEGY

Livia Davis Chief Learning Officer, C4 Innovations

Livia Davis has more than 25 years of leadership and management experience and 14 years of experience as a direct service provider working in homeless services, supportive housing, recovery communities, healthcare and behavioral health, and residential treatment for people experiencing co-occurring disorders. She is responsible for development and ongoing management of learning strategies and organizational capabilities needed to ensure alignment with strategic direction at C4 Innovations. Livia serves as C4 Innovations' project lead for SAMHSA's State Targeted Response Opioid Response Network, supporting states to address opioid use disorder prevention, treatment, and recovery. She is also a subject matter expert and former Project Director for SAMHSA's Bringing Recovery Supports to Scale Technical Assistance Center Strategy (BRSS TACS).

Livia works with a broad team of subcontractors and consultants to develop learning products, provide training and technical assistance, and facilitate policy academies, symposia, and expert panels. In her six years as Project Director for BRSS TACS, Livia was responsible for implementing a strategic approach to bringing recovery-oriented systems, best practices, and programs to scale nationally. BRSS TACS reached 115,000 people from 2011 to 2017 and developed resources ranging from a medication-assisted treatment toolkit to core competencies for the peer workforce. From 2007-2011, she also served as Project Director for SAMHSA's Services in Supportive Housing Technical Assistance Center, overseeing all aspects of technical assistance to grantees, including needs assessments, site visits, and development of behavioral health and recovery training resources. She has also provided technical assistance on behalf of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.
